A hemp “lot” is a single variety (cultivar), strain or cross that you grow in a distinct location (or locations) and is not mixed with other hemp cultivars and is planted at about the same time and will be harvested at about the same time. Many Maine hemp growers grow only one “lot” of hemp in a season. In 2020, DACF staff will be sampling individual hemp lots. It is therefore important that you plant your crop with the “lot” concept in mind and report about it in a “lot” format. After the pre-harvest sample analysis, DACF will send licensed hemp growers Certificate of Analysis reports (THC results) for each lot that is grown. Annually, you must also report your harvest for each lot you grow.
